A Future Filled with Trees - Writing Challenge

As National Tree Week celebrates its fiftieth year, we're looking forwards, considering the people, trees and places that give us hope for a future filled with trees.

We'd love you to use your creative writing skills to capture what a tree-filled future will be like. It could be a piece of descriptive writing, a diary entry from someone living in the future or an extract from a story set in a tree-filled future.

You might want to consider:

- what you think it will look like
- how our towns and cities would change
- how our countryside might change
- how people's lives, thoughts and feelings might change if they're living in country filled with trees
